

Wild Horse Restaurant

Our Story

Venison, or the meat of wild animals has recently become very popular world-wide. The reason for this is that this meat contains no artificial growth stimulants, hormones or antibiotic residues. There is also no stress hormone residues which are normally present in meat of domestic animals that are transported to and slaughtered at abattoirs. These compounds have been cited in medical studies to be responsible for the dramatic increase in diseases like cancer, diabetes and many other genetic disorders related to sicknesses.

The healthy organic meat we source was ethically harvested from private game ranches throughout South Africa. The meat has been processed in a state of the art modern facility near Cullinan that has also created employment opportunities for members of the local population.

As a result of the private ownership of wild animals and the ethical and sustainable harvesting of surplus stock there are now more wild animals in South Africa than there has been in the last 165 years. Some 20 million hectares of previously marginal agricultural land is now utilized for productive game ranching. Many species that were on the brink of extinction have been bred and now are considered safe, e.g. sable, white rhino, roan and many others.

Enjoy your healthy and delicious meal prepared with a loving touch under our chef's personal supervision.
